Nationwide release on June 13th 2006

Agetec announced that Armored Core Last Raven for the PlayStation system has achieved gold master status.

Armored Core: Last Raven picks up six months after the events of Armored Core: Nexus. The corporations have merged to form a single superpower, known as the Alliance, in their ultimate attempt to gain world dominance.

Tired of the corporate rule, a missionary group of Ravens, known as the Vertex, have formed and declared war. The fate of the universe depends upon you, a lone Raven with awesome mech powers. Now you must choose sides or decide to stand-alone; either way you will face the ultimate battle!

Developed by FromSoftware, Armored Core: Last Raven gameplay features:

- A branching storyline with 6 multiple endings;
- Human Interaction;
- An active mission system with each decision affecting the next;
- Virtually unlimited variety of options, parts, and weapons;
- Improved game play effects, including for the first time mechs that continue in battle even after losing an arm, leg or head.
