Ben Affleck And Jennifer Garner's Baby Shower

Hollywood couple Ben Affleck and Jennifer Garner threw a baby shower in Garner's hometown of Charleston, West Virginia, but they didn't keep the presents. The party, held by The West Virginia Power minor league baseball team, took place on Saturday, 9 July and more than 4,000 came, with hundreds bearing gifts, from car seat and diapers to baby food, all for charity. The donations went to the baby pantry for Starting Points, a nonprofit group serving children and the families of children under age 8. The couple got married two weeks ago and is already expecting their first child. The wedding wasn't a surprise to tabloid readers, who have been hearing speculations about their relationship and their engagement for months. Ben and Jennifer got married at the Parrot Cay resort in the Caribbean islands of Turks and Caicos. Jennifer was dressed in a cream colored empire waist, straight gown with a sea-colored sash. This is first marriage for Affleck and the second for Garner. The Alias star divorced actor Scott Foley in March 2004 after three-and-a-half years of marriage.
