Beyoncé and Jay-Z Already Fighting

The two singers had a very public squabble during one of Jay-Z's shows at the Hollywood Bowl

High-powered couple Beyoncé and Jay-Z caused a huge stir two weeks ago, when they allegedly tied the knot in an ultra-secret (but still wildly speculated) ceremony which took place at Jay-Z's Tribeca penthouse in New York. The fact is, much to the dismay of the couple's fans, the two singers are yet to confirm that they actually got married – however, barely a fortnight after their alleged nuptials, the two lovebirds were overheard having a loud argument while Jay-Z was playing a show at the Hollywood Bowl. Which means that the two artists may have been right to begin with when they decided to keep their long-term relationship low-key and away from the public eye, and avoid exposing themselves to the "public marriage curse".

The squabble started when the DJ at the show decided to spin "Crazy in Love" and Jay-Z was heard screaming at Beyoncé, "[bleep] that. Sorry Bey but [bleep] that - let's play something else." At which point Beyoncé reportedly stormed off, and once the show was over demanded explanations from her man. "He meant it as a joke, but Beyoncé didn't take it that way. After he came off stage, she confronted him, demanding to know what the hell his comments had been about. She was gesturing wildly and not looking happy." Maybe it's all due to the pressure of living with the awareness that they actually are married – either that or these two frequently get into fights over what to play, when, where and how – which would not be such a terrible surprise.

The same source also reports that prior to their fight, Beyoncé and Jay-Z were showing off "their tattooed wedding ring fingers. Both have 'IV' - the date of their wedding' - inked on." Or better said, "alleged" wedding. The fact is, fingers crossed that marriage doesn't turn into a burden for the young celebrity couple – although of course, people fight all the time and it's possible that the source is simply things a little out of proportion. Stay tuned for more news on Beyoncé and Jay-Z. Come to think of it, now would probably be a good moment for them to confirm or deny tying the knot – so stay with us and we'll bring you all the fresh news.
