

26 August 2005

By: Entertainment News Staff

Bjork's Swan Dress Will Be Auctioned For Charity

The special white dress worn by the Icelandic singer to the 2001 Oscars ceremony is among more than 150 celebrity fashion items to be auctioned on Internet auction site eBay

The swan dress worn by Bjork to the 2001 Oscars ceremony is among more than 150 celebrity fashion items to be auctioned on Internet auction site eBay for charity.

According to Rose Marsh, a spokeswoman for Oxfam, the organizers "wanted people to give things that were personal and had a story behind them because bidders will then know they are getting something particularly special to the person concerned and all in aid of a good cause".

The lucky bidder will get the item, as well as a copy of its accompanying story.

Bjork's swan dress is "the sort of thing that's kind of priceless."

"We don't know yet how much these items could raise but if people get involved in a bidding war over Bjork's dress then it could be quite a substantial amount.

The online auction opens on Sept. 18 and closes Sept. 25, coinciding with London Fashion Week, according to the Associated Press.

RELATED LINKS

Stephen King, John Grisham to Auction Character's Name

Jennifer Aniston's Love Letter Auction Canceled

John Lennon's Memorabilia To Be Auctioned

The Streets Star Mike Skinner, the New Face of Reebok

Snoop Dogg Launches Skateboard Company

50 Cent Sues Car Dealer

R. Kelly To Perform At 2005 MTV Video Music Awards \(VMA\)

Warner Goes Digital

Pamela Anderson Singing With Bryan Adams

Mariah Carey Still On Top Of The Chart