

2 August 2005

By:

Brad Pitt Quits Smoking for Angelina Jolie

"Mr. Smith" is rumored to have given up smoking for his Lady

According to an inside source, quoted by Britain's News of the World newspaper, Brad Pitt "hasn't smoked for almost two weekes". Apparently, Hollywood heartthrob has given up smoking for Angelina Jolie, the lady of his heart. The source implied that the famous 30-year-old actress has given Brad an ultimatum - cigarettes or sex - as she hates the cigarettes smell. Be it for the ultimatum, or for his recovery period after the treatment for meningitis, but Brad has quit smoking and still refuses to confirm he is dating Angelina. Meawhile, Angelina Jolie is rumored to have introduce Brad to her mother, after she has moved into the actor's Malibu home, together with her two children, Maddox and Zahara, and has been living in the guest house, until he completely recovers, as her spokesperson said. Brad, 41, is also believed to have introduced Angelina to his parents. Some reports also imply that Angelina Jolie and Brad Pitt are set to wed in September, as soon as the divorce from estranged wife Jennifer Aniston is finalised. According to a source quoted by Britain's The People newspaper: "They want to make it official as soon as possible. They feel they were made for each other."