

3 October 2006

By: Elena Gorgan, Entertainment News Editor

Brit Loves Walking Naked Around the House

The singer says that nudity comes naturally to her

It's been a while since Britney Spears gave birth to her second boy and she hasn't made any public appearance yet. Neither did she go on the record with the baby's name. But, meanwhile, fans will hear some more of her, as 'Q' Magazine is publishing an interview with her, taken when she was still pregnant. Besides the very good photos of Brit taken for the special edition of the magazine (celebrating the 20th anniversary), the fans will also get to read about her life since she found out she was with child and about her travails with the press. Thus, Britney says that Madonna was the one that influenced her to marry Kevin Federline. The singer explains: after that too-stimulating performance at the MTV Awards, she claims that the diva kept telling her about the joys of married life and that 'pushed' her into saying yes to her backup dancer. Spears lists as 'the biggest mistake of her life' (no, not marrying K-Fed!) but listening to other people around her. 'Because as a child you don't really listen to other people - you listen to yourself, right, all the time. That inner voice, you know. And I think there's been times when I've been manipulated, but you just have to learn from that and be strong and not let people take advantage of you', she explains. When the reporter decided to put such serious matters aside and asked her about the naked photo shoot for 'Harper's Bazaar', Britney said that she had no problem in doing them as nudity comes almost naturally to her. The pop star also added that, when she's at home with her hubby and her children, she strips off and walks naked around the house. 'I've always been very comfortable being nude. I don't feel like I have anything to hide', she concluded.