

30 November 2006

By: Marius Oiaga, Technology News Editor

Britney's Pussy and Sex Tape on Pirate Websites

The pop Princess turns porno

A few years ago pirated albums of Britney Spears found their way indiscriminately via peer to peer networks. But the singer has not made headlines for her music for quite some time now. Actually, since the Greatest Hits: My Prerogative album in 2004, the only press Spears got involved - to some degree - her reproductive system. And as Britney is fading in the background, her vagina is taking the stage. Just over the recent Thanksgiving weekend, Britney's fans got to see a tad more of their star than they have bargained for. After an extensive club hopping spree alongside party friends Paris Hilton and Lindsay Lohan, Spears flashed her panty-less crotch to the paparazzi. Let's just say that little was left to the imagination. In fact check out this great article signed by Elena on the occasion (images included). Useless to say that the Pop Princess turned porno generated a media frenzy, and in the wake of it, the images of Britney's vagina have even been uploaded to P2P websites worldwide. The uploaders even went to the trouble of gathering pictures from various sources and make available for download torrents of approximately 10 MB. On the same pirate websites you can find the sex tape featuring Britney Spears and soon to be future ex-husband Kevin Federline. The torrents with the alleged sex tape have emerged following rumors of a Pam and Tom remake, but starring Spears and K-Fed. Considering that both parties have strongly denied the existence of such a sex tape, it is safe to assume that the torrents uploaded via the P2P networks are not what they claim to be.