Britney Spears Is Pregnant with Her Third Child

Did she go all 'Oops, I did it again' on us?

Someone please tell me this is a lie! According to various media reports, based on the talks some 'friends' of the singer had with the tabloids, the child-popping celebrity might be pregnant... again! Father: unknown, of course! The rumor began to circulate after Britney's nights of wild partying ended with her puking in public places and after her wild weekend in Las Vegas. Sources say that she's been having regular bouts of evening sickness and that is why the paparazzi got to photograph her new man, Isaac Cohen, with her barf on his hands and car. They say she did not throw up (neither in this instance nor in the previous ones) because she had too much to drink (as it was speculated in the media) but because she got pregnant again and it was beginning to show. Plus, when they shared the 'big secret' with the world, the spies also said that she got pregnant with Jayden James almost four months after she gave birth to Sean Preston. It is four months now that Jayden was born, so her being pregnant again kinda makes sense. 'Us Weekly' is all over this story (naturally), claiming it has inside sources who can confirm that, while in Las Vegas with her brand new boytoy, Britney didn't as much as touch alcohol, not to mention drink it. 'Her dancers were indulging in Malibu rum and pineapple drinks and taking shots of vodka. But Britney drank bottled water.', the mag writes. Another pal spoke to Jeanette Walls from MSNBC and told her that Britney is definitely (like, one hundred per cent sure) pregnant. She said that this is why Britney is not losing weight at all and why, even more, she has begun gaining pound after pound. 'I've seen her during the last two pregnancies and she has the same look now. She's heavier, but that's not it. It's the sparkle in her eye. She always gets that sparkle when she's pregnant, like she's relaxed and happy.', the source said. Again: will someone please (please, please, pretty please!) tell me this is not true?!
