

16 January 2007

By: Elena Gorgan, Entertainment News Editor

Britney, the Mastermind?

Is she pimping Jayden James and preparing to 'sell' him to the media?

Yesterday, Anna Nicole Smith became again the center of all attention as rumor surfaced that she might be trying to sell pictures of her daughter Dannielynn Hope to the magazines, so that 'mommy dearest' can pay her new Bahamas crib. The rumor was somehow confirmed by the man who claims to be Dani's real father, celebrity photographer Larry Birkhead, who also took the opportunity to make an appeal to the magazines, asking them not to buy any pics that former model might be offering them. Now, it's Britney Spears' turn to become this kind of target, especially as her public appearances become more and more frequent, while her second child is still to be introduced to the world. In fact, over this past weekend, the fallen pop star was spotted enjoying some quality time at the park with her first born, Sean Preston Federline. Seeing that she is in no way camera-shy when she is seen with Sean, gossip columnist Jeanette Walls from MSNBC and Brandy Navarre from X17, voice what the entire paparazzi community is speculating: she is hiding Jayden James from the world so that his 'price' can go up and she can cash in millions of dollars once she makes his photos public. 'It's the question we've all been asking. There was some really dark footage that was supposed to be of him, but it was horrible and it doesn't really count. Now people are speculating that [Spears] is keeping him from the public because she's hoping to sell exclusive pictures of him, and now, because no one has seen him, the price has gone up.', another paparazzo says. The reason behind this (if true) makes Britney a genuine financial genius: the money she got from the pictures of Sean Preston went to Kevin. At the time Jayden was born, the two were having marriage problems and couldn't come to an understanding as to who would get the money so Britney decided to wait a little longer. Now, his value has really gone up and she is just milking the situation for all that it's worth. Oh my god, can anyone say 'Suri Cruise all over again' with me?