It appears model Jordan is going through a rough time with her wedding, because she can't keep her promise to a magazine which payed her $2 million to bring celebrities to her wedding this weekend. Soprano Charlotte Church, who was hired to sing at the wedding, pull out because of a contract with Mardi Gras festival in Cardiff. Shane Richie, Simon Cowell, Denise Van Outen and Davina McCall also refused to come to the event, Shane arguing he even doesn't know Jordan. Shane Richie said: "I'd rather get my **** caught in the fridge door then go to Jordan's wedding, to be honest, I don't even know them." A source said: "It's a mess. Jordan promised the magazine she would get loads of celebrity mates along to the wedding as part of her deal with them. But the fact is she doesn't really have many celebrity mates." Unless she rustles some stars up in the next few days, it's going to be really embarrassing for her." Until now, only Kerry Katona and Girls Aloud star Sarah Harding who will be bridesmaids, announced their presence to the wedding. Jordan and Peter will marry at Highclere Castle, Berks on Saturday.
