

23 November 2005

By: Simona Gherman, Entertainment Editor

Charlize Theron to Marry When Same Sex Marriage Becomes Legal in The US

Theron: "The day that law gets passed then we'll get married."

After repeatedly denying rumors that she is planning to marry her longterm boyfriend Stuart Townsend, Charlize Theron has found now an original way to face questions that refer to the subject. She and Stuart have declared they are to marry the day it becomes legal for gays and lesbians to wed in US. This is a stunt to keep the press quiet and happy, but could also trigger naughty comments such as which of the two is a transvestite, that the couple will enjoy, since Theron has displayed tones of sense of humor when actually kissing Shirley MacLaine's bottom. The couple's decision is also a way of showing sympathy towards homosexuals and lesbians. Theron declared: "We came up with a new idea that we said that we would get married the day that gays and lesbians can get married - when that right is given to them. We've decided that we're gonna use that in a positive way, so the day that law gets passed then we'll get married."