

6 February 2008

By: Monica Gaza, Entertainment News Editor

Looking good
CeleBitchy

Christina's Pregnancy Boobs Live On!

The singer steps out for the first time since having her baby boy

Christina Aguilera sure is a sight for sore eyes these days. The singer, who gave birth to her son Max three weeks ago, is now coming back on the big stage – but baby steps is the way to go, and it's nice to see Christina taking things slowly. Trouble is, it's hard for the rest of us to keep our eyes off the singer, for two reasons: one is her face, and the other one is situated slightly below her face and is... ahem, staring us right in the face. I'm talking about her boobs, of course – which, as you can very well see in the photo, have never been bigger and have never quite been put on display like this. Not that I'm complaining – on the contrary, I'm happy we can see Christina up close and personal looking so... swell (pun intended) but at the same time I can't help but worry about the poor kid.

I mean, I don't think milk and silicone are supposed to go together. But hey, she never officially admitted that she had a boob job, so we're just... ahem, guessing here. Christina was out voting yesterday, and then she had a session in which she signed copies of her new DVD set "Back to Basics: Live and Down Under". And yes, I like the way she looks – which is, healthy and happy, and with as much make-up on as usual. No, I don't like that part. But hey, at least she hasn't "slimmed down" in some unnatural way a week after she had her baby, like so many other celebrities out there did. Which again goes to confirm the point I was trying to make earlier about her boobies. I'm being extra clever today, aren't I?

"This whole incredible thing that's taken part in my life, between the pregnancy and the birth, I've got so much to be inspired about and so much in my life to write about. I've been brain-storming for the last nine months, actually. This next album will have a whole new me, so there's a lot to look forward to" Christina promised her fans. Well, what can I say – we're happy for her and we're happy for her boobs (actually, I think that makes us very selfish), but I'm not happy she decided to choose that particular shade of lipstick. Maybe it's all this excitement of having a new baby to look after. "It's still the first couple of weeks, every week something new happens. It's constant changing and he's constantly changing and doing these incredibly cute things - and stinky things" she says. Well, that explains it. Joking.