

21 July 2006

By: Elena Gorgan, Entertainment News Editor

Christina Aguilera Needs Some Work-Out To Get Rid of That Cellulite

The see-through business isn't fooling anyone

Everybody is glad that, finally, that Britney vs. Christina competition is over. I mean, Aguilera just released another album, has had a drastic make over and is happily married, while poor Brit is just aging away, locked inside her own house for fear the paparazzi might catch her making another mistake, she hasn't released anything, like, for ages and her marriage to K-Fed is permanently under scrutiny. And, still, Christina has her own flaws as well. For number one, we could start with her annoying 'Ain't No Other Man' that was kinda fun at the beginning, but now it just makes you want to smash the cursed TV set or radio. Second of all, for some weeks, she has been crossing a 'see-through period', in which all her clothes come either with bra and panties (pictured above) or without bra. And, to top that, she is very into shorts, too. I suspect she is trying really hard to distract our attention from some other areas... Like the ones we see in this picture of her, taken during a live performance. The only thing that you can't see is the cellulite on her legs that 'mysteriously' disappeared in the first one. Oh, the wonders of Photoshop! Anyway, just to set one thing straight: we're not blaming her for having cellulite, 'cause that only makes her more human. We're actually blaming her for showing it to us because, honestly speaking, it's gross. She should hit the gym pronto! Seriously now... If you're curious enough, here's a close up of her legs.