

10 December 2007

By: Calin Ciabai, Games Editor

Cricket 2002 Cheats \(PC\)

Super batsman, fielders and other codes

A lot of criticism has come in for the latest game in the EA sports cricket series during the releases in Australia and South Africa. The century stick - which is supposed to let you score round all 360 degrees of the ground - is reported by some players as not working properly because it only allows you to play in 8 lines along the radius of the ground i.e. a cover drive will always go into the same place. Another thing that has been noticed is an old bug from the Cricket 2004 and Cricket 2002 editions, which is in One-day internationals, bowlers are bowling more than 10 overs during an innings, which is against the rules of One-day International cricket. Or the Umpire signalling an extra after autoplay. It is also found that the Leg Before Wicket decisions are almost always incorrect, where many A.I. batsmen are trapped in front the wicket by the user's bowler (in User Vs CPU mode games) and the A.I. Umpire will not declare the wicket. Third umpire replays of run outs show the bat and in many cases the batsman himself inside the crease and yet the player is declared out. (Wikipedia)

CHEATS Click the "Inside EA" button at the main menu. Place the pointer over the "Credits" button to highlight it. Type one of the following codes to activate the corresponding cheat function. A message will confirm correct code entry. Repeat code entry to disable its effect.

Codes Unlocks all cheats - ulockall Big bat - bigbat Super batsman (easy to hit 4s and 6s) - sbatsman Ball bounces instead of rolling when hit - bouncyball Sharjah 4 team tournament - sharjahtmnt Fielders fumble and drop ball frequently - butter All-Star team - ulockastar HB Studios team - hbstudios All-Time England team - ulockate All-Time New Zealand and South Africa teams - ulocknzlsaf Fielders turned into fat umpires - fatfielders

Here's a bit of gameplay from the latest game in the series, Cricket 07: