

4 December 2008

By: Sorin Surdeanu, Mobile Editor

EA Bringing 5 New Mobile Games for Your Entertainment

Challenging, but also very rewarding

EA Mobile and Electronic Arts bring 5 more games
EA Mobile

EA Mobile and Electronic Arts have come up with five more spectacular games, to keep you interested, or even to turn you from a non-gamer to a very addicted one. These new titles are meant to keep you on "your toes," since they involve lots of concentrating and plenty of mental challenges.

Adam Sussman, VP Publishing Americas and Asia, had this to say on behalf of EA Mobile: "As we head into the holiday season, our customers will enjoy great gaming experiences created for mobile with titles such as Need for Speed Undercover. [...] As the global leader in mobile games publishing, we're proud to continue creating quality games based on popular EA franchises."

Need For Speed Undercover is a by now a classic game for speed maniacs, revealing great graphics, while also creating better than ever before the feeling that you're really behind the wheel, in a 200m/h chase. The cops are worse than ever - and you're to take that in a good way, since they give up much harder, so losing them is really going to be a challenge. This game truly pushes your skills to the limit, that is, if you reach the final circuit races.

On the other hand, Tomb Raider takes you to a more mystical place, by uncovering for you strange and dangerous places, allowing you to experience adventures you won't find anywhere else. From the beginning, you enter a world lost long ago, and remain astonished at its ancient feel, at the same, being imperative that you focus as much as possible on the puzzles "laid" in front of you and face your deadly opponents with maximum courage. This game's characteristics are more than just impressive, and you'll need all your knowledge and skills to wrap it up.

Moving on to MySims, here, you have to rebuild the city and help your people recover after a storm of epic proportions. Moreover, you will be controlling a hero, who has to solve puzzles and use numerous stunts to come out in one piece from very challenging conflicts with all sorts of monster-like figures, or from dangerous places.

In the same line is also SimCity Metropolis, which has you creating a name and reputation for yourself and your ancestors by taking a small, little developed town, and turning it into the greatest city on the planet. This will be possible only if you find the balance between developing the industry, the real-estate business and creating enjoyable work places for your "residents." The other challenge will be represented by keeping all your people happy, and also by earning Hero Buildings by solving each neighborhood's scenario.

Finally, The Game of Life, which you probably have already played or heard of, comes to your mobile to make all your dreams come true and help you get the life you've always wanted. This involves all human life aspects, from getting the best job possible, to having the most beautiful and understanding spouse and children, to making tons of money, and finally retiring to the Millionaires Estate, which is the actual purpose of the game.

These five games are available for purchase all over the world. For more information, please go here.