

31 May 2007

By: Elena Balan, Communications News Editor

The Sims Bowling
EA

EA Brings The Sims Bowling on Mobile Phones

Bowling simulation from EA

EA brings another addictive mobile game in The Sims series. This time we are talking about a bowling game that brings all the familiar characters of the original PC game which has proved to be a big success in the past. The Sims Bowling considerably distinguishes itself from what we have come to know the games in this series for. The difference is that this time, it is less about the socializing and more about playing bowling. Still, the player has the option of choosing and customizing a personal Sim, just as in the original game. After that, he can take him to the bowling alley and help him become the most popular player there. The more popularity the Sim gains, the harder it will be to advance in the game, as difficulty increases. The game can be played in three modes: Classic, Spare-O-Thon and Strike-O-Thon. Sims Bowling has several advantages that are meant to bring it among the most enjoyable such mobile gaming experiences. First of all, EA has worked hard on making the graphic look just as great on the displays of mobile phones as it did on PCs. The Sims are highly expressive and manage to make their bowling experience a realistic and colorful one. One aspect that has been appreciated by some and considered a drawback by others is that the game has only one control button. This may mean easy handling, but this can also be considered as a limiting aspect for those that are used to using a greater number of keypad buttons while playing on their mobile phone. The Sims Bowling mobile game is now available to be downloaded from all major European operators and is looking for a soon release on the North American market too. The game works on a large number of handsets and is available to be purchased from major telecommunication operators such as O2, Orange, T-Mobile and Vodafone.