Eva Longoria Is Tired of Hollywood

The Desperate Housewives star wants to go back to Texas

Eva Longoria is annoyed by all the paparazzi hunt in Hollywood and plans to return to her native Texas, after her TV show ends. The Desperate Housewives star often visits her family in San Antonio, hoping to get back to Texas as soon as possible, to get rid of the paparazzi that are always on her track. "I'm just a Texan through and through. I want to move back to Texas as soon as I'm done with the show, whenever that is. You know, I'm never followed by paparazzi in San Antonio. I'm never bothered with people in the trees trying to get a picture of me in my kitchen in San Antonio", Longoria said. "I go to the supermarket and I go shopping with my mom. I go to Wal-mart", the actress added. Meanwhile, Eva Longoria is lending her vocal talents to a new animated 3-D comedy called 'Foodfight!', which will take place in a supermarket that comes to life after closing time, according to Variety. The movie will also feature the voices of Charlie Sheen and 'Back to the Future' star Christopher Lloyd. Sheen will voice lead character Dex Dogtective, while Longoria is voicing Lady X and Lloyd will be Mr Clipboard. "Foodfight" is due for release in the autumn of next year.
