

18 July 2006

By: Elena Gorgan, Entertainment News Editor

Fergie Faked Bulimia to Cover Drug Use

And the confessions keep coming...

Immediately after Justin Timberlake's statement, in which the artist admitted to having done drugs on various occasions, Fergie joins in to tell her life story. Actually, we already knew that she was a drug addict so the news can't be that much of a shock to the world as Justin's was, but whatever. According to contactmusic.com, Stacy Ferguson used to lie to her bandmates from Wild Orchid, saying that she had bulimia as an explanation for her dramatic weight loss. Well, probably everybody thinks that it's much better to be said that you're suffering from an eating disorder than to be labeled a drug user. 'I don't want to be the poster girl for crystal meth, but it's very addicting and people just don't know how addicting it is!', were the words through which Fergie explained her reasons for suddenly talking about her past. She says that the deceit with bulimia was carried so far that she even took her friends with her to professional counseling groups: 'I put up a whole front - I even took them to Overeaters Anonymous with me. I've never been a bulimic in my life, but when you're a drug addict, you lie'. Despite her apparent sincere confession, Fergie still refuses to talk about her relationship with Las Vegas star, Josh Duhamel. The two are engaged and rumor has it that they might be preparing to go down the aisle pretty soon.