For God's Sake, Put The Grossness Away, Brit!!!

Another night, another peek

OK, now I'm officially grossed out! Not that until now I weren't, but this is way too much... Britney Spears was caught again (I would like to say 'pants down', but that wouldn't be very accurate) without her underwear and in a very short dress. Some of you may not believe this, but the pop tart needs no one to pump her the gas to her Porsche. So, she and a friend went out to the gas station, where the paparazzi were more than happy to help her pump the gas in the tank. This actually means that Brit and the other one stood inside, laughing, talking and occasionally smiling at the photogs, while they did all the job for her. Sure, they got paid for it... and more! After they, poor innocent souls, praised her for looking very good and for her sixties-inspired dress, she repaid them by showing off (A-G-A-I-N!!!) her vajayjay. No panties included... This got me thinking: is Brit Brit so poor that she can't afford to buy underwear? It couldn't be - a lingerie company just asked her to let them design her a complete set of panties (any size, model or color she likes). Is her cooch making her panties melt off? Hmm, could be. Is she stupid or very desperate for attention? For sure... As I was saying yesterday, I'm over and done with Spears. If she's dumb enough as to show her no longer private privates to the world four times in a row, then she's despicable. Apparently, I'm not alone in thinking that: her fans crashed her Myspace profile with pleas for reason, demureness and... underwear. Every magazine (both in the US and overseas) is pointing a huge finger towards her and asking: 'Is this a fit mother to two infants?'. I don't know and I really don't care. First, I thought Paris Hilton was the mastermind behind the 'flashing terror'. But, please notice, Paris is not with her at the gas station. Either she is sitting somewhere on her throne, laughing the evil laugh (mua-ha-ha-ha-ha!) or she just doesn't give a fk anymore. Who would? As a sign protest, no large pussy photos today. But you can see the whole grossness by simply clicking on those tiny-tiny, little thumbs below. If you still have eyes to see, that is...
