

14 May 2008

By: Florin Troaca, Communications News Editor

Ben 10, the mobile game
GlobalFun & Turner
Latin America

GlobalFun Announced New Cartoon Network Mobile Games

In collaboration with Turner Broadcasting System Latin America

Mobile gamers from Latin America will soon have new games to enjoy, as GlobalFun, in collaboration with Turner Broadcasting System, announced the future availability of titles based on "Ben 10" and "Foster's Home for Imaginary Friends", two well-known franchises promoted by Cartoon Network in the last years. The new games will be available both from Turner Latin America (via Cartoon Network's website) and from GlobalFun (through its office from Buenos Aires, Argentina), starting the next few months. The game based on Ben 10 will be named exactly like this, "Ben 10", and will offers players the chance to get Ben's role (you know, Ben Tennyson, the 10-year old adventurous boy) and fight against enemies during 12 levels full of action. As in the Cartoon Network series, Ben can use the Omnitrix, a device capable of transforming him into one of the following "alien-heroes": Heatblast, Cannonbolt or Fourarms. The mobile game created "from" the Foster's Home for Imaginary Friends franchise will enable you to explore a world of cute imaginary friends, where you can adopt them, play and interact with them, during a fun and unique gaming experience. In a press release published on GlobalFun's website, Marcus Johansson, CEO of GlobalFun, said: "As we continue to grow our relations with Turner Broadcasting, it is natural that we also expand this territory wise. Having a local office in Buenos Aires Argentina makes this a lot easier as we are close to our customer and their prime market." Josh Weinrobe, Director of Business Development for Turner Latin America, completed: "This partnership with GlobalFun supports our vision to aggressively grow Cartoon Network Latin America's mobile business by teaming up with best-in-class technology, distribution, and content development partners. Our audience has grown to expect the best from Cartoon Network not just on television, but on all forms of media, new and traditional. GlobalFun will be instrumental in our efforts to deliver on our multiplatform brand promise." All in all, the two new cartoonish games seem to be must-have titles for all those who like to have some mobile fun from time to time and we assume gamers from Latin America will not be disappointed.