Golf Superstars 2008 to Make Gamers Golf Masters

New mobile game from Gamevil

Gamevil has announced the availability of Golf Superstars 2008, a new game that brings the popular Golf game to the wide audience represented by all those who call themselves mobile gamers. Coming after several other sports-oriented titles (like Baseball Superstars 2008), Golf Superstars 2008 wants to offer the chance of playing golf even to users that don't have any idea about how the game is played. In order to do this, Gamevil included simple-to-use controls that allow players to master even the most advanced golf techniques. You can choose from three anime-like characters to play with, each having different skills and personalities. As you advance in the game, you will be able to buy new items ("normal" or hidden ones), customize your characters and make them perform better. Golf Superstars 2008 lets players compete in no less than 8 different tournaments, each of them being created with unique design features: Forest, Windy, Desert, Riverside, Beach, Snowfield, Mountain and Highest. We can easily imagine how the first seven tournaments look like, but we're not sure about the "Highest" one. Does it mean we'll get to play golf on clouds, maybe with God as our opponent? We don't think so, but it would be cool to see God losing. Anyway, regardless of the scenery you'll be playing in, be careful when you hit the ball, as water ponds, trees and cactuses will give you a hard time if you want to win. Talking about the new game, Stephanie Huang, Marketing Manager of Gamevil USA, said: "Golf Superstars 2008 maintains a good balance of challenging and casual game play, with tournaments that test out one's golf prowess and easy controls to ease beginners into the game. The game is very addicting, and users will find it very original and enjoyable without feeling the pressure of having to know the sport well in order to play the game." Currently, Golf Superstars 2008 is available only in the US, for AT&T subscribers, but Gamevil will probably bring the game to other carriers too, as well as to other markets (Asia and maybe Europe). These being said, let there be golf (with or without God).
