Heidi Klum Gives "Project Runway" a Face Lift

The German supermodel is set to give her TV show a little makeover

German supermodel Heidi Klum is the embodiment of a successfully managed supermodel career, which gradually and intelligently branched out into other fashion-related realms, such as the jewelry and cosmetics industry - not to mention Heidi's most precious brainchild, hugely popular reality TV series Project Runway. With her outgoing, lovable personality and spontaneity, Heidi has become one of the viewers' favorite reality TV stars - but between managing her successful career and her family life, Heidi definitely has no time for getting complacent. The direct result of her diligent work is that as "Project Runway" switches TV channels, the show will also be getting what Heidi calls a face lift. "Next year there will be a chance because we're going from Bravo to lifetime. The concept [for Project Runway] will be the same, but we will definitely have a face lift. The look of the show will change a little bit and maybe we will add some catch-phrases that will be a little bit different, the runway will be a little bit different [...] as we will move into Los Angeles", she revealed on an interview with Forbes. Heidi's success with project Runway came as a bit of a surprise for the Victoria's Secret Angel, who wisely took advantage of the exposure she received via the TV show to further advance her career and to market her products on a global level. It's quite easy to forget that at 35, Heidi boasts a jewelry line, a line of age-defying skincare cosmetics and her own line of jeans, in addition to her work as a fashion model and TV presenter. As a result, we can definitely trust this confident, affable and very popular lady to come up with the right ideas to give "Project Runway" a boost, fashion-wise and not only. Stay tuned for more news on Heidi's latest ideas.
