Jennifer Aniston Wants A Child to Vince Vaughn

But, for now, she is content with moving closer to her new love

The "Friends" star Jennifer Aniston has set her mind on finding a house to buy in Chicago. Why Chicago? The answer is simple: Vince Vaughn. Her co-star from "The Break Up" is now officially her boyfriend, even though the two have made no declarations confirming that. But the pictures taken by the paparazzi and the fact that she has met his parents are sufficient proof. Not to mention Aniston's new quest for a house. The star's friends are worried that she is rushing too much into the new relationship and that Vince Vaughn may not be the family man she's looking for. According to them, Jen is so serious about Vince that she's even considering having a baby with him. It's a drastic change if one comes to think that she and ex-husband, Brad Pitt, have split up over his desire to have children. Let us just hope that her friends' worries have no foundation and Vince Vaughn is a good choice for the former Mrs. Pitt.
