Alba: "I like a man to open doors"

Jessica Alba met her actual boyfriend, Cash Warren, in January 2005, while filming "Fantastic Four".

She has recently confessed what conquered her even from the beginning were the manners he had.

"He is very smart and respectful. Guys should treat women with respect. I am still lady-like and feminine, but unfortunately a lot of men have lost their sense of chivalry. I like a man to open doors and offer to pay.

But by no means do I need him to pay for things or tell what I should or shouldn't do. I wouldn't like that," Jessica said.

Warren is a film production assistant and is probably very happy to have Alba.

The beautiful actress had been previously engaged to her "Dark Angel" co-star Michael Weatherly, for a year.

Jessica Alba is currently working at "Awake", under the direction of Joby Harold, together with Hayden Christensen and Sigourney Weaver.

Another project to be developed in 2006 is "Sonic", with a script signed by Kirsten Elms.
