Kate Hudson and Chris Robinson Made An Adultery Pact

Beautiful actress Kate Hudson made an adultery pact with her husband Chris Robinson.

Beautiful actress Kate Hudson made an adultery pact with her husband Chris Robinson. The couple decided to sign an agreement which specifies that if either of them commits adultery, they would end their five-year marriage. Hudson confessed she was often tempted to cheat on Robinson, but she knows he will break up with her if something like this ever happens, because neither of them could forgive an extra-marital affair. She says, "There's always going to be temptation. We made a pact that if that day ever came we'd be honest with each other and say, 'For some reason I want to sleep with somebody else.' 'I'd love to say I'm the kind of person who'd say, 'I'm going to go through the bad and ugly,' and 'Oh God he cheated on me, but we're going to regain our trust.' I'd be gone. You move forward." Kate Hudson, born in April 19, 1979, is the daughter of actress Goldie Hawn and musician Bill Hudson, and sister of actor Oliver Hudson. In 2000 she was nominated for an Academy Award for Best Supporting Actress with her role as Penny Lane in Cameron Crowe's "Almost Famous". She married Black Crowes frontman Chris Robinson and gave birth to their son, Ryder Russell Robinson, on January 7, 2004.
