

9 July 2005

By:

Kate Moss and Pete Doherty had a fight

Kate Moss and Pete Doherty had a fight in the Eurostar train in front of the shocked passangers.

Kate Moss and Pete Doherty had a fight in the Eurostar train in front of the shocked passengers. Pete Doherty accused Kate Moss of seeing the father of her daughter Lila, Jefferson Hack. An eyewitness told The Sun "He was accusing Kate of being a psychopath and complaining that she was back with Jefferson." In addition, he said he looked annoyed and that "Pete showed me red marks on his hands that he said had been caused in the scrap." It seems everything started Tuesday in Paris, when Jefferson attended a party where Kate Moss and Pete Doherty were also invited. Pete Doherty failed to turn up at the Oasis concert with his band, Babyshambles. Oasis are reportedly furious and kicked the band from their tour. Meanwhile, after the Live 8 concert ended, Pete Doherty, who sang in duet with Sir Elton John, was criticized for his lousy performance. Pete was suspected of taking drugs just before he entered the stage, because he could barely stand up. But Pete Doherty has slammed the accusations, insisting he was seduced by Bob Gedolf's daughter, Peach, seconds before he went on stage. He says, "I wasn't lost for words and I wasn't out of it on drugs. Just before I went on stage, Peaches squeezed my bum hard and whispered something rather suggestive to me. It left me in such shock, I didn't know where I was." Pete Doherty, born March 12, 1979 in Hexham, Northumberland, UK, was co-frontman and songwriter with Carl Barat, of British punk and garage rock revivalists The Libertines. He is currently the frontman for the band Babyshambles. Since 2003, he has become known to the public for his addiction to drugs and his recent relationship with model Kate Moss.