

29 November 2005

By: Simona Gherman, Entertainment Editor

Kate Winslet Shows Her Body in "Little Children"

The actress was nervous about showing her body

While filming for her new movie, "Little Children", in which she portrays a bad mother, Kate Winslet had to shoot some explicit sex scenes and to wonder around wearing only a bathing suit. The actress was very nervous about her body at the beginning, but relaxed after she saw the filmed material. "If you had said to me 15 years ago, 'When you are nearly 30 and you've had two children, you're going to be doing some very explicit sex scenes and you're going to spend a week in a bathing suit', I swear to God, that literally would have been my worst nightmare." But according to Teen Hollywood, her fears have soon vanished away: "I got to a point where I thought, 'For God's sake, screw it. I'm always gallivanting around the place, going, 'Be who you are, be who you are.' I should just get over myself and get on with it, and I did. The bathing suit was actually a fabulous red halterneck, and I was very pleased with myself, frankly, after I got through that.'" "Little Children" is a movie about a group of young married people, whose lives intersect on the playgrounds, town pools and streets of a small community "in surprising and potentially dangerous ways", according to IMDb.com.