The socialite parades in front of the camera in a provocative red bikini top

Kim Kardashian is a real-life superstar. No, it's not an allusion to her famous sex tape, although there might still be some residual mental associations left in our brain back from the age when she was valiantly "fighting" to prevent the tape in question from hitting the market. In any case, Kim is really a star - the stuff dreams are made of. Her very appearance casts an immediate shadow over everyone who just happens to be close to her at the time - although, of course, that could also be due to the fact that Kim possesses a series of widely acclaimed though slightly overrated all-natural charms. For those of you who have just got off a space ship or lived in a cave so far, I'm talking about Kim's well-rounded derrière. Her a*s, people - which she so elegantly puts on display whenever she has the chance - as you can see from these photos. Of course, there are other things worth being mentioned about Kim except her rear end - such as the fact that she's a reality star, and that her life is subject to daily scrutiny for the E! reality TV series "Keeping Up With The Kardashians". Which is a show that basically allows Kim to strut her stuff in front of the camera as often as possible while grudgingly sharing the spotlight with the rest of her family. Yet another show about a spoiled, rich socialite without a care in the world, whose troubles mainly stretch from choosing the color of her new bikini to actually wearing that bikini and putting on a show for the cameras. So, what's not to like about her? She has no particular talent of any kind, except perhaps a little bit of fashion sense, but of course, that part is quite controversial in itself, given that Kim has at one point been sued by singer Brandy's mother and accused of credit card theft. You see, Kim was supposed to act as Brandy's stylist and consequently given Brandy's credit card in order to make some purchases on her behalf. However, Brandy's mother claims that Kim conveniently forgot to return the card in question, and proceeded to spend a lot more than she had initially been allowed to - for her own agenda. So, with Kim's reliability as a fashion adviser questioned, the best thing she can do is to keep on flashing her boobs at the camera; she'll be just fine, and so will the rest of us.
