

17 March 2008

By: Monica Gaza, Entertainment News Editor

Kim Kardashian wants to become Britney Spears' stylist
Wallpaperbase

Kim Kardashian Wants to Give It to Britney

The reality star and sex tape protagonist has expressed an interest in becoming Britney's stylist

For some unknown reason, Kim Kardashian thinks that she's some sort of internationally acknowledged style icon. No idea how that thought came into her head, particularly since to this day she has only officially styled one celebrity (singer Brandy), and the whole affair ended up in a court battle over a stolen credit card and rather a lot of missing money. Kim's latest styling endeavor proves that this lovely lady isn't afraid of playing in the big girls' league, and in a video blog entry, the aspiring stylist and former sex tape protagonist raved about how she'd love to give Britney Spears a makeover.

Judging by newspaper and magazine headlines – not to mention the ever-alert blogosphere, pretty much half the world's population would like to give Brit Brit a makeover, remove the grease stains on her shirts, make sure she wears panties, gets a proper weave and have the colors of her contact lenses match – you know, those little things that go a long way. Trouble is, ever since Britney's father stepped into his daughter's life and started putting things right, Britney has lost a lot of her tabloid appeal. A couple of months ago, anyone and anything even remotely connected to the former pop princess would have gotten a lot more attention than they deserved – not anymore. But apparently, there's no stopping Kim.

"I would love, love, love to give Britney Spears a makeover", Kim claims. "I think everyone wants to give her a makeover. But I think that she is so cute and sweet and has a great style. But it's all fallen apart and it's a mess now. I would love to bring her back to where she used to be". Kim seems to believe her styling tips would do the trick – one can only hope that if given the chance, she won't be giving Britney any other kind of advice. We've already become familiar with a lot more of the popwreck's private parts, the last thing this world needs is a Britney sex tape. So watch out for Kim, she's on a mission. Fingers crossed these two will never meet again.