

27 June 2007

By: Elena Balan, Communications News Editor

LG Muziq
Sprint

LG Muziq Phone Arrives at Sprint

The ultimate media phone

Sprint will bring from now on a new communication solution for their customers. LG Musiq is one of the most advanced handsets when it comes to binding high sound performances with reliable phone functions. LG Muziq has just about all the features that an excellent music phone should pack in order to provide the best listening experience for its user. Don't worry about having to cram only your favorite melodies on a small data storage space. This handset comes with a 4GB microSD memory card slot, which make it possible to store up to 4,000 songs. That's a lot of personal songs to be stored and little possibility to get bored. Still, if that happens, there is also a built-in FM radio which will also allow users to listen to their tunes wirelessly within 10 feet of reach. Connectivity is also available through USB, which means that you will be able to easily transfer songs and information from the PC and right on the mobile phone for later viewing. There is also a 1.3 megapixel camera included, although this may prove to be of little interest for those who would buy such a handset. The quality of video and image captures is quite poor, but, this is above all a music phone and not a camera one. One more useful feature the LG Muziq has to offer is the full-feature GPS navigation. This service proves to be quite easy to use, as it comes with voice and on screen turn-by-turn driving directions and more than 10 million business listings. Moreover, it also supports Sprint TV services and brings more than 50 channels of live television and on-demand video and audio. LG Muziq will be available starting the 15th of July in all Sprint stores and at the company's website. The phone will come at a price of $100 with a two-year service agreement.