Lindsay Lohan Volunteers to Strip Naked

Thankfully, the producers of the movie which requires Lindsay to get into the skin of a nymphomaniac waitress have refused the offer

Lindsay Lohan sure needs very little persuasion to get naked these days, for... artistic purposes, that is. The rehabbed actress - who, incidentally, has been spotted downing rather a lot of vodka and popping pills in various clubs lately - made a passion for removing her clothes in full view of the world, and is quite keen to keep at it. After her brief nude stint in New York magazine (where she did her best to re-enact Marilyn Monroe's famous last sitting with photographer Bert Stern), Lohan set her sights on a role which would reportedly allow her to give full reign to her underlying nudity and play a nymphomaniac waitress in the indie film "Florence". Although the role only requires Lindsay to take her top off for one sex scene, the actress allegedly volunteered to do a lot more. In exchange for her flesh-baring efforts, Lohan is only getting paid $75,000. However, this is of no importance to her, as she's just keen to... well, get naked and sweaty. That is, get down to business. "Lindsay doesn't care that she's getting paid peanuts," reports an insider quoted by Star magazine. "She just wants to remind people that she can act and she's worth hiring." Also, the source reports that although the script only requires LiLo to show her boobs, she offered to go all the way down and strip completely. "She said it would be no problem to go Full Monty," added the insider. Thankfully, the producers refused to go along with her very helpful offer. No word yet on the source of Lindsay's sudden passion for hitting the big screen in her birthday suit; however, it may be that the actress is trying to build up her aura of "mature, responsible actress" who is fully aware of the potential of her body. If truth be told, however, the world has pretty much reached saturation as far as Lohan's body is concerned, and a naked LiLo is no longer the hot attraction it used to be. Just remember the amount of gossip and the never-ending rumors that swirled around for months and months when Lindsay was rumored to get naked for her part in "I Know Who Killed Me". However, things have changed a lot ever since, and not for the better. We'll just have to wait and see.
