

11 November 2008

By: Filip Truta, Apple News Editor

Macvide Audio Recorder box
Macvide

Macvide Audio Recorder 2.1 Available

Popular audio recording solution for Mac OS X

Macvide has updated its audio capturing conversion utility for Mac OS X, Macvide Audio Recorder, to version 2.1. Just like the last time, Macvide has only included maintenance tweaks. The software can be tried out for free in demo mode for as long as the user wants.

The Audio Recorder can convert audio files to formats such as mp3, mp4, amr, wma, mmf, aac, ac3, flac, mp2, helping bridge the gap between many audio standards. "Recording to a computer has never been easier," says Macvide, adding that its audio recording app application "is ideal for recording voice or other audio that you can use in podcasts or other voice presentations, or to create an audio book." As noted above, Macvide Audio Recorder supports popular audio formats for quick and easy recording of audio notes, messages and more. Best of all, any Mac user running Tiger or Leopard on a PPC or Intel Mac can use the app.

Using Macvide's solution, Mac owners can also record voice or music directly from a microphone or other external line-in input, and even record sounds that are being played by the Mac internally. For example, you can record a song or a podcast that iTunes, QuickTime or Flash are playing. Obviously, the sound output from your games can also be recorded. Streaming audio from the web is also a go for Macvide's sound recording app.

Macvide has designed Audio Recorder to be simple but robust, so that professional users can benefit from the app. As such, Macvide Audio Recorder enables users to record sound, voice, notes, music or any other audio, save recordings to their hard drive in mp3, iPod mp4, and achieve Wave encoding at sample rates between 6000 and 196000Hz in PCM, or many other codecs and bits.

To download a copy of Macvide Audio Recorder, or to update your current version to 2.1, follow the link below. The same address holds a path to the full-featured demo version, which records only 30 seconds of audio until registered.

Download Macvide Audio Recorder 2.1 \(Update / Demo / Buy\)