Madonna's Guy Thinks Her New Album Is Crap

He prefers Irish folk music

Madonna has confessed that her hubby doesn't think much of her new album. The pop diva talks openly about it and admits Guy Ritchie walked out of the room when she first played him the songs from her latest hit. "Guy thought it was s**t. He prefers Irish folk music", she said. Britney Spears indulged husband Kevin Federline with a similar treatment, after she had heard the first songs recorded by him. She had said to him: "You might sell a hundred, maybe a thousand copies, if you're lucky". So Kevin and Madonna are sharing the same experience - being misunderstood by their halves. Madonna's hubby doesn't seem to think much of her Kabbalah as well, so there might be a problem. His latest movie, "Revolver" has received some critics that implied he spent too much time with Kabbalah and paid less attention to the film. "The horrific reception 'Revolver' has received has undone all of Madonna's good work. Critics hate the Kabbalah plugs. He wants to distance himself from it. But Madonna is such a staunch supporter; it will make their marriage very difficult", an insider revealed. Apparently, Madonna is very upset with her husband and feels rejected, as she became much attached to the religion and even insisted to be called by a Jewish name, Esther. So the fact that Guy didn't like her new album is the smallest of Madonna's problems.
