Mario Testino Says Kate Moss Doesn't Have A Drug Problem

Testino: "I don't think she's at all tormented, torrid, depressed."

Famous fashion photographer Mario Testino has recently defended supermodel Kate Moss regarding the drug scandal, claiming he never saw Moss losing control over her life. Testino, who has worked with Kate since she was 15, declared that he doesn't even believe Moss has a drug problem, despite checking herself into a rehabilitation centre in Arizona, United States. "I know Kate very well and I don't think she's at all tormented, torrid, depressed," he told the BBC Radio 4 Desert Island Discs program. "I have to say I'm not a witness to seeing her debauched or out of control. There is a moment when everyone wants to just lose that little bit of control. Who knows? Maybe that was her moment and we just happened to see that moment and all of a sudden we're judging out of 10 minutes the life of somebody and destroying it. I don't think life is so black and white.", Testino explained. The photographer also stated that Moss, who lost her contracts with Chanel, Burberry and H&M as a result of the scandal, always was a professional. "Since 15 until today, she's never not been there on a shoot, never said to me, 'I'm tired, I don't want to work' - never. She works from eight in the morning 'til 12 at night if need be" Mario Testino revealed.
