

9 October 2008

By: Filip Truta, Apple News Editor

Billings icon
Marketcircle

Marketcircle's Billings 3 on Sale

To give Mac freelancers and small businesses a break

Marketcircle Inc. has decided to give Main Street America's Mac freelancers and small businesses a break by lowering the price on Billings 3 time tracking and invoicing software, from US$59.95 to US$39.95 for a seven-week period. Upgrades are also priced lower now. Marketcircle's Billings 3 "Give Main Street A Break Sale" puts 20 bucks back into the pockets of Main Street entrepreneurs, "at a time when it really matters."

With the U.S. Federal Government busy managing a $700 billion bailout for Wall Street, Marketcircle Inc. is now offering Billings 3 for US$39.95, while a Billings 3 upgrade for Billings 2.x users is also on sale for US$25 (instead of US$35). The deal ends on November 30, 2008.

"While Wall Street's needs are being attended to, we believe Main Street's Mac freelancer and small business community deserves a break as well," says Marketcircle's CEO Alykhan Jetha. "Billings 3 sales so far have been fantastic, and to say thank-you the Billings 3 "Give Main Street A Break Sale" puts 20 bucks back into the pockets of Main Street entrepreneurs at a time we think it really matters. We recognize the fact that existing small business owners in the United States are facing challenges, and also that layoffs in large corporations are creating a rising population of freelancers - all of these people deserve the productivity advantages of Billings 3."

Marketcircle is a company best known for its Daylite Productivity Suite, but also for Billings, a Mac app focused on sending professional invoices. Released on the market on September 18, the app features a clean UI and 30 professionally designed templates, complementing its "five minutes to your first professional invoice" promise. Trial versions are available for both Daylite and Billings right here on Softpedia.

Besides the features listed above, Billings 3 also includes abilities like:

- instant overdue invoice notification;
- consolidate and send invoices for multiple projects or send recurring invoices;
- time tracking with a convenient menu-bar timer available from any application;
- 17 new reports including "billed and collected," "unpaid invoices," "expenses tax report," "retainer balances" and "activity by client."

The software is compatible with Mac OS X 10.4.11 (the latest available version of Tiger) or 10.5.3 (Leopard) and higher. Visit Marketcircle here to find more details on Billings 3, and maybe even buy your own copy today.