Mary Kate Olsen Does the Lolita Bit

The more introverted of the twin sisters has some of the ugliest shoes out there!

It's been a while since we've noticed that Mary Kate Olsen is the proud owner of one of the ugliest and weirdest looking pairs of shoes probably in the entire world but, thus far, we have held our mouth shut on the account of her always being harassed by the media. Call it empathy for the poor girl, or call it what you want. Nevertheless, the point is that her shoes can no longer be disregarded as they have. And neither can Mary Kate's Lolita look that she's been sporting for the past couple of weeks. In the past years, both the Olsen twins have been constantly followed around by tens of paparazzi and other media representatives and speculations on their bodily weight and eating habits were so abundant, that enumerating them all would be absurd. After being almost run over by a too-prying photographer (who later got his share of man-handling from her personal bodyguard), Mary Kate was out spotted again and, for a girl with a long history in anorexia, she doesn't look as good as she should. But, then again, maybe she's just that kind of thinner women out there. That's not what we want to talk about here, as her health is only hers to deal with. But, overlooking the nice dress and the funny sunglasses (and the cigarette that seems to be a step away from dragging the former child star to the ground), our eyes became mesmerized by the heinousness that is her shoes. Besides looking bad, they don't even go with that pretty dress that she has on. Hell, the whole outfit is even worse than what Janet Jackson wore during a BET performance on July 31st. And that includes the horrible brownish shoes she had on then! Without saying more, see for yourselves what fashion in terms of shoes means for Mary Kate Olsen.
