Manson Is Selfish, Buys Skeletons of Young Girls

Don't piss your band members or, else, suffer the consequences!

Recently, Marilyn Manson has been attacked by most media outlets, not necessarily because of his music but more because of the persons he chose to associate himself with. Or, to be more precise, because of the person he picked for his Dita von Teese's replacement, the 19-year-old actress, Evan Rachel Wood. Believe it or not, for some reason or another, there are people who can't come to terms with the fact that he dropped Dita for a younger version of herself and that he keeps shoving his latest contests in everybody's face. Stupid, ha? However, if there was one thing that no one could question so far was that Marilyn was like really into his own music. Or that he conducted his business like a pro. Well, allow Stephen Bier to beg to differ! If you don't know who Bier is, you will from now on, because he has dished a lot of dirt on the rocker and, what's most important, he's not afraid to go to the tabloids with it. Just making an honest buck, I presume... Bier used to play keyboards in Marilyn's band a while ago but he got fired. And not only that, he also got screwed of his fair share of money from the beautiful music he made with the Antichrist Superstar, he claims. Bier is now gearing up for a good old suit against the rocker, saying that he has enough proof to show that, instead of paying him the due proceeds, Manson went and spent the money on such 'trivial' stuff as an expensive wedding, Nazi memorabilia and the skeleton of a Chinese young girl. Let me just say this: !!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!! Are you for real?! Manson promised Bier "partnership proceeds" from the band in 1993, but then splugged on "a multimillion-dollar home, had a lavish wedding in Ireland, gave an engagement ring to Dita von Teese" and collected Nazi artifacts and taxidermy. When Bier asked for the "partnership proceeds," Manson "devised a campaign to drive Bier out of the band and rob him of his entitlement", one source tells PageSix. Manson's rep was not available for comment but, rest assured, come tomorrow when the suit will be filed, there will be more details on this. And again: a skeleton of a young girl? This just puts 'The Ring' into a totally different perspective... you know that thing comes to life at night, looking for young blood...
