More Heather Mills Naked Photos

Sir Paul McCartney's former wife sure loves getting naked

Heather Mills can be safely labeled this planet's biggest hypocrite. The former glamor model, who always made a point of claiming that the past 20 years of her life had been spent doing charity work, was recently revealed to have a bit of a soft spot for getting naked. Because indeed, that's what charity is all about, isn't it? Mills was exposed to the glare of the already not-so-friendly public eye on at least two occasions in which she had stripped all the way down to her birthday suit, once before the motorcycle accident in which she had lost her leg and afterwards. The "before" photos were downright pornographic, showing Mills in various compromising poses with an equally nude male companion. The second set of photos was allegedly taken for the former model's landmine charity. However, there's no explanation on why she had to get completely naked for them. The answer is simple: because if there's one person in this world Heather Mills loves, it's herself. The narcissistic former wife of Sir Paul McCartney made no secret of her love for money and her violent, often bizarre media rants were directed towards him, the media itself and just about everything else under the sun - except herself, of course. The funny part is that when the "landmine charity" set of photos was snapped in 1999, Heather had not yet met the former Beatle, and was reportedly very keen to hold the whole thing under wraps for fear that it might damage her chances of romancing him. But charity work can't possibly be shameful - look at all the famous ladies who bared all for PETA's anti-fur campaign. The question then becomes, what was Heather Mills hiding? The only possible reason that comes to mind is that she might have had a contingency plan for the nude photos depicting herself either or not wearing her prosthetic leg. To make it perfectly clear, there's nothing wrong about flaunting her missing leg for charity or otherwise, it's the "nudity" part that's the issue. Once Heather became the second Mrs. McCartney, she used Sir Paul's influential status to threaten all those who could have leaked the photos to the media to keep quiet. However, once the divorce between the two has been finalized, no one has any reason to keep quiet anymore, so here are a few more shots of everybody's favorite gold-digger. Stay tuned for more news on this topic.
