Unlock the Dodge cars and some groovy tracks

NASCAR 2005: Chase for the Cup is a racing simulator published by EA Sports in September 2004 for PlayStation 2, Nintendo Gamecube and Xbox. It is the eighth game of Electronic Arts' NASCAR series and dropped the word Thunder from the title, the first game in the series to do so since NASCAR 2001. Kevin Harvick appeared on the cover. Unlike previous entries, which would normally add a few extra features but leave most of the game identical to its predecessor, the game brought massive change to the series.

One example is the inclusion of NASCAR series other than the NEXTEL Cup; the Busch Series (referred to as the National Series because of rules prohibiting alcohol advertising in games), the Craftsman Truck Series and the Featherlite (now Whelen Modified) Tour. More examples include the implementation of NASCAR's new Chase for the Cup points system and Fight to the Top mode, where you control a custom driver throughout his career. This was the last NASCAR game released for the Nintendo Gamecube. Here's a series of passwords that you'll find extremely useful throughout the game:
