

By Mohi Baza, Entertainment News Editor

Nicole Hates Her Boobs, Disses Big-Busted Women

I have a feeling we'll be hearing a lot more from her from now on

If you were to take five minutes and think about Nicole Richie, what would be the first things that would come to your mind? I'm not talking specifics now, just play that game of "close your eyes and say the first things that pop into your head". Here's the shocker: I don't think there's actually too much to tell when it comes to Nicole. She's the spoiled daughter of a famous singer and is best known for being a skinny former heroin addict and an arrogant rich brat with seemingly little understanding or compassion for people outside her circle of friends and relations. Oh, and she's also friends with Paris Hilton, which is not something anyone in this world should be proud of. Here's another shocker: since her pregnancy was announced and especially after the birth of her daughter Harlow, Nicole has become Hollywood's favorite reformed "bad girl gone good" and all of a sudden, her popularity increased exponentially with the public need to know more about who she really is as a person, and especially as a mother. Trust Nicole to make the most of this renewed public interest. And so, Hollywood's most interesting socialite mommy sat down with OK! magazine and complained about the size of her boobs. Which makes me think Nicole is very smart, and quite keen to give us all what she thinks we want from her - some personal details, a little controversy and some other bits and pieces to gossip about. So, here's another shocker (well, sort of). Nicole doesn't like big boobs and thinks they make her look trashy. "I am bustier now and I really don't like it. It doesn't really fit with my wardrobe, it's not who I am. I am not someone who is used to wearing a bra or having to wear a bra. I really don't like it", she is quoted as saying. "I like wearing vintage hippy see-through shirts that aren't slutty on me because there is nothing to look at. Now I have boobs so I can't really wear it because it sends out a different message", she added. Well, now, if this isn't controversial, I don't know what is. Kidding. But really now, how do you dig Nicole's new attitude? Don't hesitate to let me know.