Nokia N95 8GB Magically Presented

The funniest Nokia commercial ever?

Nokia N95 8GB

Released in the US only a few months ago, Nokia N95 8GB is among the best mobile devices that American users can currently buy. Although the handset is far from being affordable, it has reached record sales across the globe and it will probably sell well a long time from now on. In order to make sure US users are aware of what the Nseries flagship is capable of offering, Nokia came up with a series of funny and well-thought commercials, gathered under the "Open to Anything" motto. The latest commercial of this kind presents us a semi-pro magician that usually does the "disappearing trick" to the joy of the public. But our magician has a small problem, as apparently he's more semi than pro, and after disappearing he doesn't end up where he should, so he kind of gets lost. Fortunately, he always carries an N95 8GB that helps him find out where he is, thanks to the built-in GPS. Plus, with the 5 Megapixel camera with Carl Zeiss optics, flash and auto focus, the clumsy magician can take good-quality pictures, even at night, while his mom is on her way to come and take him home. Check it out for your for yourselves in the video posted below.

Besides being available Stateside, Nokia N95 8GB (reviewed by Softpedia here) was also released in Canada, via Rogers, at the beginning of May. Therefore, the northern neighbors of the US users can also get their hands on the Nseries high-end phone and enjoy its wide range of advanced features. Back to the magical presentation of the 8GB N95 - I haven't seen all the commercials Nokia came up with for its products until now, but I'm sure this one is among the funniest. Or my name is En-nai Fai del Nokio Magico. And it's not, luckily.
