Opera Mini 4 Beta 2, also for BlackBerry Phones

Better, improved version

Opera, considered to be the best mobile browser available, has just upgraded to its second beta version. The software will bring some additional improvements and also better support for BlackBerry users. It's not only about having better support on BlackBerry smartphones, but also on the large number of other upgrades that the new Opera Mini 4 version has to bring. The software has just taken care of a large number of problems that it used to experience until now. The software is now capable of doing a great deal more than before. The settings page has been simplified, just as the setup process has been. Several shortcuts have been added, for multisearch and landscape mode, all meant to make operating the application a great deal easier. The image quality is considerably higher and the browser is now capable of saving full screen mode between the sessions. A clock adjustment setting has also been included, as well as an improved fit to width mode rendering. Dialogs will be displayed from now on with round corners for a more appealing interface and alpha channel overlay windows will be used. When it comes to BlackBerry users, they will mainly benefit from a native menu just for their devices. That is only natural to happen, as these smartphones are frequently used for receiving information and taking care of business situations even when out of the office. They make an important part of the Opera Mini users, a good enough reason for receiving great consideration in the software's design. Moreover, they will also be able to accept EULA through the browser's menu. Opera Mini 4 beta 2 brings all the advantages of the previous application version, with some extra ones and bug fixes. This application installs beside the current Opera Mini version without overwriting any of the existing files or settings.
