PETA Just Loves Naked Women...

Sadie Frost, their latest 'ass-et'

The actress and fashion designer Sadie Frost is the latest celebrity to strip completely naked for a PETA ad. A convinced vegetarian, the former wife of Hollywood's sweetheart Jude Law, posed butt naked for the campaign against the use of animal fur for clothing items. 'I don't use fur in my collections. It's disgusting and it reminds me of death and blood. Besides, animal cruelty is always out of fashion', Sadie said right after the photo shoot was finished. She is not the only celebrity actress to strip for a PETA ad, as Pamela Anderson has recently taken off all her clothes, while she stood in a window shop in front of hundreds of people. PETA (People for Ethical Treatment of Animals) is having a very busy couple of days, with fashion week going on in New York. Reports from the media state that many fashion shows have been disrupted by campaigners who walked up on the catwalk, wearing huge signs saying 'Fur Kills'. In what respects Sadie, the ad shows her completely naked, with her butt to the camera and with a tagline saying 'Turn Your Back on Fur'. And that she does, my dears, that she does... Without getting into a demagogic discussion, there's only one logical conclusion to be drawn from here: PETA sure loves naked women...
