

24 July 2007

By: Roxana Deduleasa, Gadget News Editor

Minicat Floating boat
RedFerret

Dude, Pack Your Boat in a Rucksack and Head to Fiji!

The Minicat floating boat is having a tremendous success

Holy whoogly! If I ever write to Santa, he'd better give me one of these! Now, for all you backpack freaks out there, this might come as a shock ... or not. Mini Cat fellows brought this awesome Mini inflatable twin boats, which actually fit into a bag you can chuck in the boot of your car, if you forget some of your friends on the way. How cool is that? Regarding its dimensions, the floating boat weighs only 40kg, but it's astounding that when inflated, the boat can support weights of up to 240kg and sail out to sea, or on lakes and rivers, or wherever your adventurous soul might take you. The costs are lower than with any other kind of boat you might own, so there are some financial advantages in this, too. After unzipping the bag, it only takes just about half an hour to produce a complete water and wind ready catamaran. Among the most important features, it has hard wearing, abrasion resistant floats, a fiberglass and aluminum frame, keel fins for safe shallow sailing, a plastic fabric trampoline, an anchor point, a lockable rudder that can be raised to 90°, a mast and a sail area of over five square meters. It needs an efficient and sexy captain of the deck, and it's ready for action. The best part is that the catamaran supports two persons, so that you can take one of your loved ones with you while being away. Not to mention it doesn't even need so much depository space, as it requires only 1350x280x280mm from your attic or cellar space. The assembly space is estimated somewhere around 30 minutes. When carrying it, you can put it into a bag or rucksack. Cool! Not to mention this wacky MiniCat is portable and works without the need of the roof racks and trailers. Just a hunky and brave captain for some wicked water fun. The price tag is somewhere around 2600 pounds a pop! Now, that's what I call a brilliant invention. Take it to sea, Captain! We are just a few, but there are many of you, Softpedia users, out there. That's why we thought it would be a good idea to create an email address for you to help us a little in finding gadgets we missed. Interesting links are bound to be posted with recognition going mainly to those who submit. The address is .