Former Baywatch star Pamela Anderson declared she's attracted by persistent men, who know what they want and how to get it. Pamela, 38, confessed she's disappointed by the today's men, because they give up after the first try-out.

Anderson declared Tommy won her because he knew how to be persistent. Tommy Lee followed Pamela to Cancun and proposed her after only 96 hours, on February 1995.

She says, "I would love to meet someone, but I want to be pursued. I think here in Hollywood there's a lot of men... (who believe in) one try and they're gone..."

There's not a lot of chivalry anymore and there's not a lot of real passion and people pursuing.

One thing with Tommy was he followed me down to Cancun (Mexican resort), he asked me to marry him in four days. It was romantic, it was whirlwind-y and that's what every girl wants. They want to be chased. Not stalked, but chased," Pamela added.
