

13 June 2006

By: Elena Gorgan, Entertainment News Editor

Pamela Anderson Gives Cinematography Another Try

'Baywatch' returns, to the big screen, and so do Pammy's boobs...

The suppositions issued by a British newspaper that the role of the main character in the new 'Baywatch' movie will be played by Jessica Simpson have not yet been confirmed. Anyway, the entire original cast, including Pammy, Carmen Electra and Traci Bingham will be replaced by a new group of hotties. Director Eli Roth says that he intends to call the three veteran actresses to appear as guest stars in the film. So, Pamela is to be seen shaking her huge boobies again for the large audiences in cinemas. Reportedly, she agreed to appear in the movie only after seeing that, quote, 'Spielberg's company is going to make it'. Apparently, she forgot that, in 1996, she starred in 'Barb Wire' and made a complete fool of herself with her porn-like acting. On the other hand, the director can't imagine 'Baywatch' without Pamela, so the film is due to be released in 2007, with the blonde guest-staring.