

12 January 2009

By: Elena Gorgan, Life &amp; Style Editor

Peter Andre and wife Katie Price, set to take Los Angeles by storm again unrealitytv

Peter Andre Goes "Alien Hunting"™ with Robbie Williams

Singer will move to LA to better observe extraterrestrial life

When word got out that British pop star and former Take That member Robbie Williams was so fascinated about UFOs and alien life that he was thinking of seriously investing in it, the entire media was almost instantly filled with sarcastic jokes at his expense. However, it seems that at least one person shares the same interest, even if his reputation is a lot more "fragile" than Robbie's: Peter Andre.

As we were telling you a few days ago, Peter and wife Katie Price, once known as glamour model Jordan, are currently planning their move to Los Angeles to shoot the next season of their reality show and, at the same time, to have Peter work on his next album. Yet, the "Mysterious Girl" singer tells the British media they'll be doing some UFO searching as well.

Speaking with The Mirror, the eternally-tanned and buffed singer, as he's often called in the press, has revealed that he has already spoken to Williams about their hooking up - and neither could be more enthusiastic about the prospect. "Robbie's a great guy. We've already been texting about meeting up. I'm going to look for aliens and UFOs with him." Peter said, adding that he's already a "space cadet" for Robbie. "I'm obsessed about them and gutted I've not seen one yet."

Moreover, while wife Katie will be hitting the Los Angeles partying circuit with newly found best friend socialite Paris Hilton, Peter will be spending his spare time indoors, doing more "domestic" activities, also with the "Angels" star. "Then afterwards we're gonna play backgammon. He's a big fan, but I'm gonna teach him a thing or two." Peter Andre told The Mirror, prompting one of the editors to jeeringly add "Be afraid, Robbie. Be very afraid."

While what lies ahead of them in the US sounds like nothing but fun, it will probably be some time before the couple actually moves there. Katie, for instance, just launched a fashion line, the KP Equestrian Fashion Line, but has many other projects in the pipeline. "I've got loads of stuff coming out - my third perfume, cosmetics, hair products, more underwear, I have a pram and high chair range, a line of kids and men's equestrian wear, another novel, more kids' books and a styling book," Katie was telling OK Magazine at the time.