Pokemon Codes from CodeJunkies

The lazy way to Pokemon

Are you a proud owner of a Pokemon Nintendo GBA game? If the answer is yes, this might catch your eye. Some Pokemon codes will come out this week, which will open up all your favorite Pokemon games on the Game Boy Advance, helping you to master Pokemon. This codes pack is called Ultimate Codes and apparently, it will harness the power of Action Replay, and will allow you to fill your Pokedex and take any Pokemon you wish into battle. You will also get Infinite Money, and other goodies like Rare candy, Antidote, Full Restore, Potion, Burn Heal. If you can't advance in Pokemon Fire Red or Leaf Green, you can get a Magic Door Code with this Ultimate Codes pack. These codes can be applied to the following Pokemon Game Boy Advance games: Pokemon Mystery Dungeon: Red Rescue Team, Pokemon Emerald, Pokemon Fire Red, Pokemon Leaf Green, Pokemon Ruby, Pokemon Sapphire, Pokemon Pinball Ruby & Sapphire. This codes package retails for GBP 14.99 or can be purchased online via the codejunkies.com website, and apparently, it is available only in the U.K. Closing this material, I'd like to say that I don't understand why Pokemon is such a popular franchise in the entire world. I can understand why little kids play it and watch the cartoons but I've seen grown people enjoy it very much. Is there anything wrong with them?
