

9 October 2006

By: Elena Gorgan, Entertainment News Editor

Posh Is Ugly When She's Naked

The fashion icon says that she looks awful in the buff

Even if many hail Victoria Beckham as one of the most beautiful women in the world, a real fashion icon in both taste and bodily measurements, she often sees the other side of the glass: the one that is empty. In a very candid interview with the Australian edition of 'Harper's Bazaar', the former Spice Girl said that, contrary to what the world sees and believes, she is not at all satisfied with what she has to face in the mirror every day. Victoria told the reporter that having to give birth to three children did not fail to leave a mark on her body and of these aging signs she is most aware of. 'I've got so much saggy skin on my stomach', the glamorous wife of David is quoted as saying by the 'Daily Mail'. Apparently, the singer turned fashion designer is also not happy with the fact that she has no bum to brag of, a thing which does make her look great in jeans but not so when naked. 'I might fit into jeans but, trust me, I look really awful naked', Victoria stated. Nevertheless, the star did not mention whether she plans to resort to plastic surgery to eliminate all those disadvantages that she mentioned. She did say, though, that she has no intention of ever returning to singing, as she is more than happy with the way she is and with what she is doing right now. 'I'm done with music and I'm never going to act. I was an okay singer and an okay dancer and I had to work at it. I never want to act. Fashion is what I love. I've dreamed of doing my own clothing line even before I was a Spice Girl. Now I can do what I love and I've found that I'm really good at it', Mrs. Beckham concluded by saying.