

25 November 2006

By: Sergiu Gatlan, Communications News Editor

Pussy's Mobile Attack

The Hello Kitty phones have as a target the Asian market.

Men always wanted good things in their lives. For that, they have always wanted to have women near them to make their living spicier and fuller of battles between the two sexes. One of the things that lead to these polemics inside couples and that men don't understand about women is the taste for pink. I have also always wondered what is with that color and what can someone find attractive about something colored like a big puffy sugar cotton ball. Apparently, as most of the women in my life have told me, the men will never understand this. But there is a thing women don't realize yet: we found their soft spot and we're not afraid to use it. So, if you want to give a woman something that she will surely like, be sure to get something pink because this way, she is going to understand things that will have never crossed your mind to tell her in the first place. I don't want to be misunderstood though; this is by no means what every woman on the face of the earth will want from you, but... You're free to try it anyway :). Enough with writing around the subject and let's get to the point. The Taiwanese OKWAP mobile phone manufacturer has made a series of pink phones that go exactly where a girl is softer: right at the part of her brain that likes pink. And, to be more evil, they have put on them Hello Kitty characters to be sure there is no escape. This is almost sure the hand of the men designers from OKWAP and trust me, if you are a girl (or woman), you will surely want to get your hands on at least one of these handsets. The first is the A268Kitty, a pink phone with a 3 megapixel digital camera, a bilingual dictionary, two color screens and, the most important, the best girlie design I ever saw in a clamshell. Next is the A236Kitty, the pink version of a smart slider, a phone that also has a 3 megapixel camera that comes with a touchscreen, a stylus and a kitten inspired set of icons. The A279Kitty is the "beast" of the group because it has a spec sheet that will make it the envy reason for phones looking a lot less pink than it does. This Kitty will offer its users a 3 megapixel camera, an FM tuner, a bilingual dictionary, a pedometer, 100 MB of on-board memory and a strip of LED lights that will let you wave your message in the air after writing it (and this is the way we return to our ancestors that were using flags or smoke signals). The phones will be available only on the Asian markets, so if you are a pink lover and want one of these mobile phones, be sure to head that way and come back with it and show off in front of your friends (that, if I'm not mistaking, we'll have the time of their lives).